COUNT ONE

(18 U.S.C. Section 1962(d))

THE ENTERPRISE

JOSEPH VITO MASTRONARDO, JR.,
JOHN MASTRONARDO,
JOSEPH F. MASTRONARDO, a/k/a “Joey,”

ERIC WOEHLCKE,
HARRY MURRAY,
JOSEPH VITELLI,
ANNA ROSE VITELLI,
PATRICK TRONOSKI,
EDWARD FEIGHAN,
KENNETH COHEN,
SCHUYLER TWADDLE,
MICHAEL LOFTUS,
MICHAEL SQUILLANTE,
DAVID ROUNICK, and

and others known and unknown to the grand jury, were members and associates of the Mastronardo Bookmaking Organization. The Mastronardo Bookmaking Organization was a criminal organization based in the Eastern District of Pennsylvania whose members and associates engaged in crimes, including illegal gambling, money laundering, interstate travel in aid of racketeering, and the interstate and international transmission of wagering information.

2. The Mastronardo Bookmaking Organization, including its leadership, membership, and associates, constituted an “enterprise” as defined in Title 18, United States Code, Section 1961(4), that is, a group of individuals associated in fact. The enterprise was engaged in, and its activities affected, interstate and foreign commerce. The enterprise constituted an ongoing organization whose members and associates functioned as a continuing unit for a common purpose of achieving the objectives of the enterprise.

PURPOSE OF THE ENTERPRISE

3. It was a purpose of the enterprise to obtain money for its members and associates by operating an illegal gambling business, and laundering the proceeds of that business. It was also a purpose of the enterprise to maintain, protect and attempt to expand the power, territory and profits of the enterprise through the recruitment of additional individuals who would establish betting accounts and place sports bets on the internet and on the telephone.

MANNER AND MEANS OF THE ENTERPRISE

4. The manner and means used by the enterprise to further its goals and achieve its purposes included the following:

(a) The Mastronardo Bookmaking Organization was headquartered in Montgomery County, Pennsylvania, and had members and associates throughout the United States and in Costa Rica. Defendant JOSEPH VITO MASTRONARDO, JR., and his brother, defendant JOHN MASTRONARDO, were two leaders of the Mastronardo Bookmaking Organization.

(b) The Mastronardo Bookmaking Organization used internet websites, which included but were not limited to www.betroma.com and www.betrose.com, to conduct its bookmaking activities. In addition to the websites, the Mastronardo Bookmaking Organization also used telephone numbers to conduct its bookmaking activities. Bets were placed in Pennsylvania and elsewhere in the United States by use of the internet and telephone. The websites and telephone numbers were staffed and supported by individuals who resided in Costa Rica. A bettor could use the website or a telephone number to place sports bets on football, baseball, basketball, golf, horse racing, and other sporting events.

(c) The Mastronardo Bookmaking Organization required a bettor to establish a betting account. The betting account consisted of an account number and a password. The betting account was typically set-up by an agent or sub-agent who worked for the Mastronardo Bookmaking Organization. These agents and sub-agents worked in Pennsylvania and elsewhere in the United States.

(d) The Mastronardo Bookmaking Organization did not require a bettor to put money into their betting account before placing a bet. As such, immediately after setting up a betting account, a bettor could begin placing sports bets through the website or over the telephone. In this way, the Mastronardo Bookmaking Organization extended credit to its bettors as soon as they established a betting account.

(e) The Mastronardo Bookmaking Organization did require a bettor to enter their account number and password on the website, or give their account number and password over the telephone, before placing a sports bet. The odds for these sports bets were published on the website, and were detailed over the phone. The results of a bettor's winning and losing sports bets were recorded on the website.

(f) The Mastronardo Bookmaking Organization relied on its agents and sub-agents to collect payments from losing bettors and to make payments to winning bettors. Collections from and payments to bettors were made in Pennsylvania and elsewhere in the United States. The agents and sub-agents repeatedly forwarded money collected from losing bettors to leaders of the Mastronardo Bookmaking Organization. If certain agents and sub-agents could not make a complete payment to a winning bettor, the Mastronardo Bookmaking Organization would cover that payment. The financial relationship between the Mastronardo Bookmaking Organization and its agents and sub-agents varied.

(g) Members of the Mastronardo Bookmaking Organization communicated regularly with one another by telephone, by e-mail, by text message, by Skype, and in-person, to maintain the orderly operation of the sports betting and the orderly collection of gambling debt.

(h) Members of the Mastronardo Bookmaking Organization met bettors in person to collect and/or deliver payments for the sports bets. These meetings often took place in public buildings and in public parking lots. The payments often ranged from $1,000 to $20,000, but at times exceeded $100,000.

(i) The Mastronardo Bookmaking Organization accepted payments from losing bettors in cash, in checks, and through wire payments. The payments from losing bettors included bettors who lived in Pennsylvania and elsewhere in the United States.

(j) The Mastronardo Bookmaking Organization made payments to winning bettors in cash. The payments to winning bettors included bettors who lived in Pennsylvania and elsewhere in the United States.

(k) The Mastronardo Bookmaking Organization used the Five Points Gulf Station, located at 298 Norristown Road, Blue Bell, Pennsylvania, as a means to collect and/or deliver payments for the sports bets. Gambling payments were mailed to the Five Points Gulf Station by Federal Express and by other mail carriers. Gambling payments were also dropped off at the Five Points Gulf Station.

(l) Members of the Mastronardo Bookmaking Organization hid large sums of United States Currency in and around their residences. Specially-built secret compartments were used to hide over $1,000,000 in the residence of defendant JOSEPH VITO MASTRONARDO, JR. in 2006, and over $400,000 in the residence of defendant JOHN MASTRONARDO in 2006. PVC pipes were buried in a garden outside the residence of defendant JOSEPH VITO MASTRONARDO, JR. in 2010, and were used to hide over $1,100,000.

(m) Members of the Mastronardo Bookmaking Organization kept money-counting machines in their residences. Defendants JOSEPH VITO MASTRONARDO, JR., JOHN MASTRONARDO, and ERIC WOHLCKE all had money-counting machines in their residences in 2006 and again in 2010. These machines were used to quickly and accurately count the large sums of United States Currency that were being collected. At its peak, the Mastronardo Bookmaking Organization had over 1,000 bettors and was generating millions of dollars of betting activity in a year.

(n) Members of the Mastronardo Bookmaking Organization worked shifts as office employees, which consisted of the members answering telephones, speaking to bettors and bookmakers, recording bets on the website that were communicated on the phone, and fixing problems on the website.

(o) The Mastronardo Bookmaking Organization made efforts to hide the bookmaking activities that were conducted in office locations. These efforts included moving offices from one address to another, as well as using another person's name to register the phone numbers and the utility bills associated with an office address.

(p) Members of the Mastronardo Bookmaking Organization provided instructions to bettors on how to fill out checks that were used to pay sports bets. Bettors followed those instructions, and made payments of their gambling debt with checks.

(q) Members of the Mastronardo Bookmaking Organization provided instructions on how to pay gambling debt through charitable contributions. A $10,000 charitable contribution from a losing bettor could result in $10,000 being erased from the losing bettor's gambling debt. Based on this quid pro quo, charitable contributions were made.

(r) Members of the Mastronardo Bookmaking Organization provided wire instructions to bettors explaining that gambling debt could be paid by wiring money to off-shore bank accounts. The wiring instructions were often listed on a single typewritten page, and were faxed or e-mailed to the bettors. Bettors followed the instructions, and made wire payments of their gambling debt to off-shore bank accounts.

(s) Members of the Mastronardo Bookmaking Organization laundered money that was collected from losing bettors in a variety of ways, to include the use of one or more check cashing agencies, private bank accounts, and international bank accounts. The laundering of money involves transferring money that was obtained through illegal conduct through a legitimate person or account so that the original source of the money cannot be traced.

(t) Members of the Mastronardo Bookmaking Organization included numerous individuals in Costa Rica, who provided daily support for the orderly operation of the sports betting and the orderly collection of gambling debt. Members of the Mastronardo Bookmaking Organization residing in the United States regularly communicated with, and on occasion traveled to, Costa Rica to further these objectives.
